

JONES ART NEWS AND VIEWS

A FAMILY THAT PAINTS TOGETHER STAYS TOGETHER

On June 4, 2010 at Town Center's First Fridays Artwalk, the Jones family set up a painting performance in the fountain plaza, along with an accompanying display of their artwork. Louis Jones began the large acrylic painting in front of a crowd eager to see his ideas come to life on canvas. The weather was quite warm that day and the painting's color palette clearly reflects the heat. With coaching from his wife, Susan and son, Ryan, the painting evolved into an eclectic view of a tree reaching to a sky filled with emotion and energy. Eventually Susan, Ryan and even Melinda all donned brushes to help Louis put the finishing touches on the painting. Join them on Friday, July 2, 2010 from 5-8 p.m. for the next Artwalk and see art created before your eyes! ### WHAT'S NEW AT JONES ART GALLERY

The next time you are in the Armada Hoffer Lobby in Virginia Beach's Town Center, check out the latest painting by artist Ryan Jones, a 3' x 4' large acrylic painting on canvas. It depicts a vibrant sunset over beautiful wetlands as the sky clears swiftly after a summer storm. This painting captures the beauty of that moment, of the perfection in nature. The colors are rich and warm and you can feel the sunset light cutting through the storm clouds, as the breezes move by quickly.

Stop by our art gallery and check out more of the latest original paintings and Limited Edition prints by Louis Jones, Susan Jones, and Ryan Jones.

JONES ART SPOTLIGHT

If you haven't checked out John Grisham's latest book "Ford County", it contains Louis Jones's drawing on the title page of the book, marking Louis's third drawing for the author.

"Ford County" is one of the only compilation of short stories to make it on the New York Times Bestseller List.

INSIDE LOOK: STORIES BEHIND THE ART

Christmas 1993: Susan Jones, artist, awoke with a slight stiffness in her little finger. Within a week, both of her hands were so swollen and painful that she was unable to even lift a paintbrush. Certain that this was some bizarre allergic reaction, she went to her doctor where she learned that she had Rheumatoid Arthritis; a crippling disease that not only affects the joints, but the entire body, including the internal organs as well as the immune system. Her gift of painting had been taken from her and this was the greatest loss.

At the arthritis center Susan saw the once strong, straight bodies of other victims bent by this disease. Surprisingly, she also saw humor, beauty and courage in them. They were bent, but not broken. After six months of treatment she began to regain the use of her hands. It was during this period of pain and fear that she envisioned "The Gathering".

When you see the print "The Gathering", you feel a flood of emotions as you join "The Gathering" to rejoice in the beauty of the day. Susan's arthritis is now under control and not a day goes by that she doesn't paint, nor does she take this gift for granted. Susan hopes that others can benefit from this image of hope.
